A Meditation for the 31st Sunday of Ordinary Time
 Readings: Wisdom 11:22, 12:2; 2
 Thess, 1:11-2:2, Luke 19:1-10
 The LORD seeks those who long for him. Let us praise him. "Like the deer that yearns for running streams, so my soul is yearning for you, my God." (Ps. 41:1). Receive the LORD with joy and be ready for change.
 In the book of Wisdom in the OT, the author says that God rebukes offenders little by little, reminding them of their sins so that they may abandon their wickedness and believe in him. "You have mercy, O LORD, in all things because you love all things that are" (Wisdom 11:24).
 In today's gospel, Jesus intended to pass by the city of Jericho, but he stopped for someone "who was seeking to see who Jesus is. In a brief encounter, Zacchaeus climbed a tree and peers into the face of Jesus. Though Zacchaeus was a public sinner his heart was open to the power of Jesus" love-and his life was transformed. God loves the repentant person. Jesus calls each one of us to reconciliation-let us adore him and in our Eucharist, say thank you, LORD! Jesus the Son of Man exemplifying God's loving mercy has come to seek and save what was lost.
 Are we as eager as Zacchaeus to meet God, or are we ashamed of our sins that we turn away from God's righteous mercy. Be at peace with everyone, turn away from sin "and strive for that holiness without which no one will see the LORD." (Heb 12:14).
